The West Australian

Matildas star Amy Taylor won't be getting her gear off

News Corp Australia
May 25, 2009 4:00PM

TOPICS NSW News QLD News Celebrity Confidential WA News News VIC News SA News Entertainment

FORMER Matildas soccer star Amy Taylor has knocked back an offer to whip off her shirt for men's magazine Zoo Weekly.

Zoo editor Paul Merrill yesterday confirmed the magazine offered Taylor $15,000.

Taylor, as revealed here last week, is considering taking legal action against singer Brian McFadden after he made comments at the pay-TV industry awards, Astra, last month.

Brian McFadden disses Amy Taylor

Merrill said while Taylor would not be expected to strip for the spread, she might have been required to "remove her jersey in John Aloisi fashion".

"Being on a Zoo mag cover is a prestigious opportunity for a woman," Merrill said.

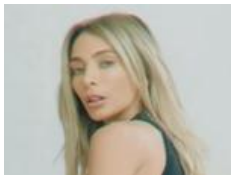
Originally published as Soccer star's stript pledge

ADVERTISEMENT

Register To Win

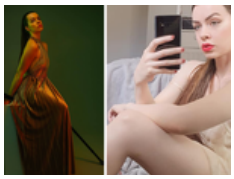
Get the code word Sunday from STM magazine for your chance to win a $10,000 Karrinyup shopping spree

FROM AROUND THE SITE



Influencer returns

Bartel is BACK after 'powder snorting' scandal



🤦🤦🤦

Trolls say amputee model is 'faking' having one leg

Search continues

'We're going to find Cleo, we HAVE TO' say parents

Bashed bloody

WATCH: 'Rowdy' teens launch BRUTAL attack on Perth dad

perth now

FOLLOW US

now GET OUR NEWSLETTER SUBMIT A STORY TIP SEND US YOUR PICTURES

Follow Us

About Us
Contact Us
Careers
Letter to the Editor
Place an Ad

© West Australian Newspapers Limited 2020

News
Sport
Entertainment
Business
Lifestyle

Privacy Policy
Code of Conduct
Editorial Complaints
Terms of Use
Cookie Settings

Subscribe to the Paper
Digital Edition
Advertise on PerthNow

Our Partners

The West Australian
7plus
7NEWS
Home Beautiful
Better Homes & Gardens
Marie Claire
New Idea
That's Life
Beauty Crew
SocietyOne
Airtasker
HealthEngine
iSeekplant